There are two types of records included in this series. One consists of traditional passenger lists on standard forms and monthly lists of aliens crossing the border on trains. The monthly lists are arranged by month, thereunder by name of port, and thereunder by railway. In 1895 the immigrant gave his or her name in full, literacy, last residence, and whether he or she had ever been in prison, an almshouse, or supported by charity. Beginning in 1906 the immigrant's physical description, place of birth including the country and city or town, and whether he or she was an anarchist. In 1924 the immigrant had to indicate if he or she could read and write and in what language.
